

Short App Description

Course planner app has Nicolas Dalton's Spring semester courses information and grading distributions. Each course has its own tab at the bottom of the application; this makes it easier for the user to navigate from one course to another. The app uses sliders for the grading distribution. Each slider has a max slider value that is equivalent of the weight of what it is representing. The user can see their letter grade they receive in each course depending on the value of the sliders. An exceeding expectation feature is that the slider value text color and letter grade text color change depending on the slider values. The lower the score the more red the text color gets; the higher the score the more green text color gets.
